

Villa Hera, Paxos.

Villa near the port of Loggos on the island of Paxos with views across the Ionian Sea to Corfu. Primary aims were to provide a series of integrated and harmonious indoor and outdoor spaces that offered the clients protection from the sun, views and connection with the native landscape. Built on the brow of a hillside in an olive grove the villa avoids the conventional luxurious bungalow aesthetic for a more vernacular architecture appropriate to the island. Local stone, render and glulam with bamboo solar shading feature externally.

Contractor—Jerry Mitsialis

Engineering and technical support—
Maria Tseliou

Photography by Henry Daeche

